Name Change and Relocation Announced by Interior Design Firm

Natick, MA June 11, 2008 --- The interior design firm formerly known as D&D Design Solutions has relocated its business to 10 West Central Street, Natick, MA, and has changed its name to Daniel H. Houde Design.

Daniel H. Houde Design is a full service design firm whose services include both interior design and home staging for both residential and commercial properties. The firm has experienced excellent growth since opening in 2003. “We found ourselves in a situation where we needed a showroom to work with clients, display our designs and to store furniture that we own for the home staging side of the business,” stated Daniel Houde, certified interior designer and owner of the firm.

The name change is part of a re-branding program which came about as the result of industry research that revealed that designers identity is their brand. Daniel Houde is not a newcomer to interior design. He worked in retail for over 25 years where he developed and refined his skills in store layout and merchandising design, space planning, redesign, staging , architectural drawing, floral arrangement, painting techniques, and color consulting. He received his certificate in interior design from New England Art Institute and he holds a real estate sales license.
